AUIB
Society of Arts and Letters

Brand and Identity

The Society's design system: its logo, colors and type, used with restraint and in one language at a time. Less ink, more page.

For the Director of Media, the Design Lead and anyone making something with the Society's name on it

Prepared by

Shaheen Farjo

Founder and President

Contents

Three principles 03

The symbol 04

The wordmarks 05

Lockups 06

Clear space and misuse 07

Color 08

Color roles 09

Type 10

Type scale 11

Space and shape 12

Interface parts 13

Screens 14

Arabic and phones 15

Qirtas 16

Programs 18

Documents 19

Forms and footers 20

Posts and print 21

Carousels and stories 22

The mascot 23

Stickers 24

Voice 25

Photography 26

Files and templates 27

Modern page, old pen.

A society about writing should look like the best-made page on campus: wide margins, light type, one crimson mark. Modern in its restraint, literary in its words, and plainly part of AUIB.

Quiet by default

White space, hairline rules and sentence case carry the page. Each page gets one loud thing: a headline, one crimson word or one band of color. If two things compete, remove one.

One language per piece

Every page, post and document is in English or in Arabic, with the logo in that language. The two editions are equals, set in the same family, Ubuntu and Ubuntu Arabic, each written for its own readers and checked by a native speaker. Never both on one piece.

The page is the brand

The symbol is a bookmark, and it appears only as the logo. Everything else is built from what a book is made of: pages, margins, rules and type. Titles stand alone: no markers, ribbons or labels above them. No icons, no gradients, no shadows.

The paper and the pen.

Our motto, a line of al-Mutanabbi. On Arabic pieces it appears in his words.

The Bookmark

A crimson panel with a V-notch cut into its top. Turned over, it is the tail of a ribbon bookmark: the mark that keeps a reader’s place. Its name is the Bookmark, in Arabic «العلامة».

sal-symbol.svg · crimson, on white or paper

sal-symbol-white.svg · on ink

sal-symbol-white.svg · on crimson

Turned over

Why a bookmark

It marks a place in a book: the Society keeps yours. It reads as a page, a ribbon and the notch of the Typewriter’s paper guide.

Only the logo

The Bookmark appears once on a page, inside the lockup or as the avatar. It is never a bullet, a section marker, a ribbon or a decoration.

The rules

Crimson on white or paper; white on crimson or ink. Never crimson on ink, never outlined, rotated in use, given a gradient or a second color.

The wordmarks

The name in two languages, each on four lines, drawn once and never retyped.

sal-wordmark-en.svg · “AUIB / Society of / Arts and / Letters” in Ubuntu Bold, left-aligned sal-wordmark-ar.svg · «جمعيةُ الفنونِ / والآدابِ في / الجامعةِ / الأمريكيةِ» in Ubuntu Arabic Bold, right-aligned

Color is one hue: crimson-700 wordmarks on light grounds; crimson-100 on crimson and ink (the reversed files).

Text is outlined in the files, so no fonts are needed. Line breaks, spacing and proportions are fixed.

Below about 9 px cap height the four lines stop being legible: use the Bookmark alone.

The wordmark alone, in the carousel’s language, closes every carousel.

Never set the wordmark in ink, retype it, re-break its lines or set it on one line.

Lockups

The symbol and a wordmark, in the language of the piece. Each comes in a light and a reversed file. The logo appears once per page or post.

English · everything in English: headers, covers, letterheads, posts

English, reversed · on ink and crimson

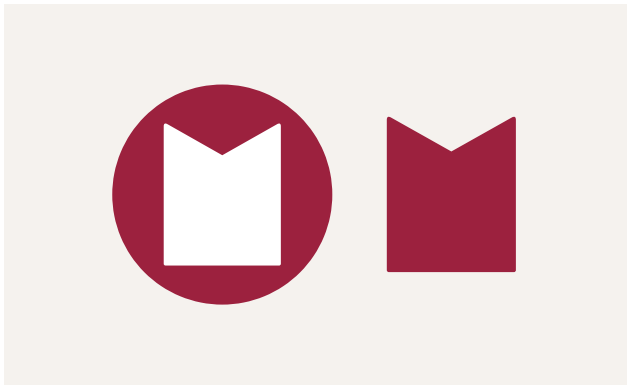

Arabic · everything in Arabic, the symbol on the right

Arabic, reversed · on crimson and ink

Stacked · square spaces, stickers, merchandise

The avatar (white Bookmark on crimson) and the symbol alone: favicons, stamps, badges

Built in. In every lockup the symbol stands as tall as the English wordmark, from the first cap line to the last baseline, and the gap between them equals the depth of the notch. Never assemble a lockup by hand. The bilingual lockup (English | symbol | Arabic) is kept only for permanent signage, banners and merchandise that must speak to both at once.

Clear space and misuse

Clear space: one notch depth (about a quarter of the symbol's width) on every side.

Minimum sizes

Bookmark: 16 px on screen, 5 mm printed

Horizontal lockup: 45 mm wide in print; 40 px tall on screen

Wordmark: 9 px cap height; below that, the Bookmark alone

Hudhud: 48 px; his avatar 28 px

With the University

Where the AUIB logo appears it leads; the Society's lockup follows at equal or smaller height.

Inside AUIB's own templates, follow AUIB.

NEVER

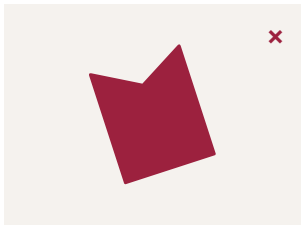

Stretch or squash it

Recolor it

Put the crimson symbol on ink

Rotate it

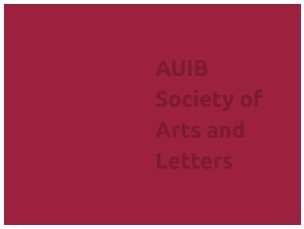

Add shadows or effects

Retype the name

Mix languages or repeat it: one lockup, in the piece's language

Use the light file on crimson

Six colors, one of them loud

The AUIB three lead: crimson, ink and white. White does most of the work, ink carries the words, and crimson appears once or twice a page at full strength.

White
#FFFFFF
The page for everything.

Ink
#273236
Text, footers, dark mode. 13.2:1 on white.

Crimson
#9C213E
The logo, one word, one button, one band. 7.8:1.

Paper
#F5F2EE
Qirtas and long reading only.

Stone
#E2DDD6
Hairline rules. Never text.

Ash
#5C6568
Secondary text and captions. 6.0:1.

ABOUT 70 WHITE · 18 INK · 7 CRIMSON · 5 PAPER AND STONE

RESERVED

Crimson-700
#7E1A32
Inside the logo files only.

Crimson-100 (rose)
#EBCBD3
Accent on ink; reversed wordmarks.

Mist
#C3CACB
Secondary text in dark mode.

Slate
#3D494D
Rules in dark mode.

Never add a color, and no program may add one. Never use crimson as a pale tint or a large block of headline.

Never set crimson text or the crimson symbol on ink (1.7:1): on ink, the accent is rose.

Color roles

Build with roles, not raw colors. Each role has a value for light mode and for dark mode, so one template works in both.

ROLE	LIGHT	DARK	USE
`surface`	white	ink	Page ground
`surface-reading`	paper	ink	Qirtas pages, long reading
`text`	ink	white	Headlines and body
`text-secondary`	ash	mist	Captions, meta, labels
`accent`	crimson	crimson-100	The one loud thing: italic word, button
`on-accent`	white	ink	Text on the accent button
`line`	stone	slate	Hairline rules
`band`	crimson	crimson	One full-bleed band per page at most
`on-band`	white	white	Text on band
`footer`	ink	ink	The footer and the invitation band

Dark mode

Dark mode is ink, for the whole page, on screens only. The visitor's system setting picks it until they choose. Certificates, letters and printouts stay white sheets, and pages print in light mode.

Contrast

Every text pair reaches 4.5:1 in both modes. Rules and fills that carry no words may go lower.

PAIR	RATIO
Ink on white	13.2:1
Ink on paper	11.8:1
Crimson on white	7.8:1
Crimson on paper	7.0:1
Ash on white	6.0:1
Ash on paper	5.3:1
White on crimson	7.8:1
Rose on crimson	5.2:1
Rose on ink	8.8:1
Mist on ink	7.9:1
Crimson on ink	1.7:1 · never

Ubuntu, set like a book

Ubuntu speaks for the Society in English and Ubuntu Arabic in Arabic: one family for both languages, as AUIB uses it. The range: Light for display, Regular for reading, Medium for labels.

UBUNTU LIGHT · DISPLAY

Come in.

UBUNTU ARABIC · REGULAR

تفضّلوا

STYLE	SCREEN	PRINT (A4)	POST (1080)	WEIGHT	USE
Display	124 · 72 px	58 pt	160 px	Light	Titles, the motto, large dates; one italic accent word
Title	44 px	—	—	Light	Section titles, standing alone
Heading	28 px	18 pt	—	Regular	List items, card titles
Lede	21 px	17 pt	38 px	Regular	One sentence under a title
Body	17 px	10.5 pt	—	Regular	1.6 leading, 60–70 characters a line
Label	12 px	7.8 pt	28 px	Medium	Field names, columns, metadata. Never above a headline
Code	12 px	9 pt	—	Mono	`SAL-GOV-01 · F-14`; six-word typewriter lines

Arabic

Ubuntu Arabic Regular: it has no Light and no italic, so display is Regular and the accent word is color only. 1.3 leading for display, 1.6–2.0 for text. Never tracked. `dir="rtl"`, `lang="ar"`, Western digits.

Inside Qirtas

Long articles in Qirtas are set in Literata for reading. Its masthead, headlines and interface stay Ubuntu.

Bold

For the logo and for emphasis inside a sentence. Never for headlines. Ubuntu Arabic has no Light: Arabic display uses Regular.

Ubuntu, Ubuntu Mono and Literata are free from Google Fonts. Ubuntu Arabic ships with the design system. Never substitute another Arabic face.

The type scale

Every size has a name. Use the names in code and templates, never a size picked by eye.

STYLE	SIZE / LEADING	WEIGHT	USE
Screens · Ubuntu
`display-xl`	124 px / 0.98	300	The home page's motto and one-word bands ("Come in."). Scales down to 56 px on phones. One italic accent word at most.
`display`	72 px / 1.0	300	Page titles: About, Join, an article headline.
`title`	44 px / 1.1	300	Section titles, standing alone; at most a text link at the end of the line.
`heading`	28 px / 1.25	400	List items and card titles: an event, a story.
`lede`	21 px / 1.5	400	One sentence under a title.
`body`	17 px / 1.6	400	Running text and interface copy, 60–70 characters a line.
`label`	12 px / 1.4	500	Small tracked capitals: field names, dates under numerals, footer headings. Never above a headline, never sentences, never Arabic.
`caption`	13.5 px / 1.45	400	Bylines, captions and meta in text-secondary. The desk or section goes here, under the headline.
Print (A4) · Ubuntu
`print-display`	77.33 px / 1.0	300	58 pt. Cover and section titles, Light, in ink.
`print-lede`	22.67 px / 1.35	300	17 pt. One sentence under a title.
`print-heading`	24 px / 1.25	400	18 pt. Headings within a page.
`print-body`	14 px / 1.55	400	10.5 pt. Body text.
`print-caption`	11.33 px / 1.4	400	8.5 pt. Captions and notes in text-secondary.
`print-label`	10.4 px / 1.3	500	Small tracked labels on forms and covers.
Social (1080 px posts) · Ubuntu
`post-display`	160 px / 1.0	300	Two to five words with a full stop. One italic word at most.
`post-lede`	38 px / 1.4	400	One sentence under the headline.
`post-meta`	28 px / 1.4	500	The date or link and @auibsal at the bottom start.
Arabic · Ubuntu Arabic
`ar-display`	64 px / 1.3	400	Arabic headlines and the motto on Arabic pages. Regular, never tracked; the accent word changes color only.
`ar-heading`	30 px / 1.6	400	Arabic section titles and list headings.
`ar-body`	18.5 px / 1.9	400	Arabic body text, one step larger than body.
`ar-post`	132 px / 1.3	400	Arabic post headlines on 1080 px posts. The sentence is 42 px and the meta 30 px.
Qirtas reading · Literata
`read-dek`	22 px / 1.5	400	The standfirst under a Qirtas headline.
`read-body`	17.5 px / 1.68	400	Article text in Qirtas, in two columns on wide screens.
Mono · Ubuntu Mono
`code`	12 px / 1.3	400	Document codes, form numbers, six-word typewriter lines.

Space and shape

Space is the main material. Things are separated by margins and hairlines, never by boxes, shadows or fills.

TOKEN	VALUE
space-1	4 px
space-2	8 px
space-3	16 px
space-4	24 px
space-5	40 px
space-6	56 px
space-7	88 px
space-8	110 px
space-9	128 px
page-margin	21 mm	A4 side margins (79 px)

Corners are square everywhere (`radius-none`). Only avatars are round.

Hairlines (1 px) in `line` between list rows; in `text` under mastheads and section rules.

No shadows, no frames, no tinted cards.

Lists over cards. Use a card only for a separate object, such as a ticket.

One band of full-bleed color per page at most.

Connecting students

Fostering creativity

A list with hairlines, not cards

Join the Society What's on

One solid button; everything else a text link

Interface parts

The pieces every screen is built from, in the design system's bundle.css and the platform's components. Square, hairline, quiet.

Button and link

Join the Society

What's on this term

One solid accent button per view, 48–50 px tall on screen, sentence case. Everything else is an underlined link.

Navigation

About Programs Events Join

Medium 14.5 px, sentence case; the current section underlined 1.5 px in accent.

Fields

EMAIL

name@auis.edu.krd

A 1 px line box, square. The label above, never inside.

Errors

STUDENT ID

12308

Your ID has seven digits. Check your AUIB card.

Section title

This term

All events

The title alone, a link at the end of the line at most.

Lists

03
TUE · NOV

The first Council meets
Open to every member.

6:00 PM

Rows between hairlines, not cards. Dates large and Light.

Status

Approved Draft Overdue

Outlined text, never a filled pill.

Dark mode

Come in.

Membership is free.

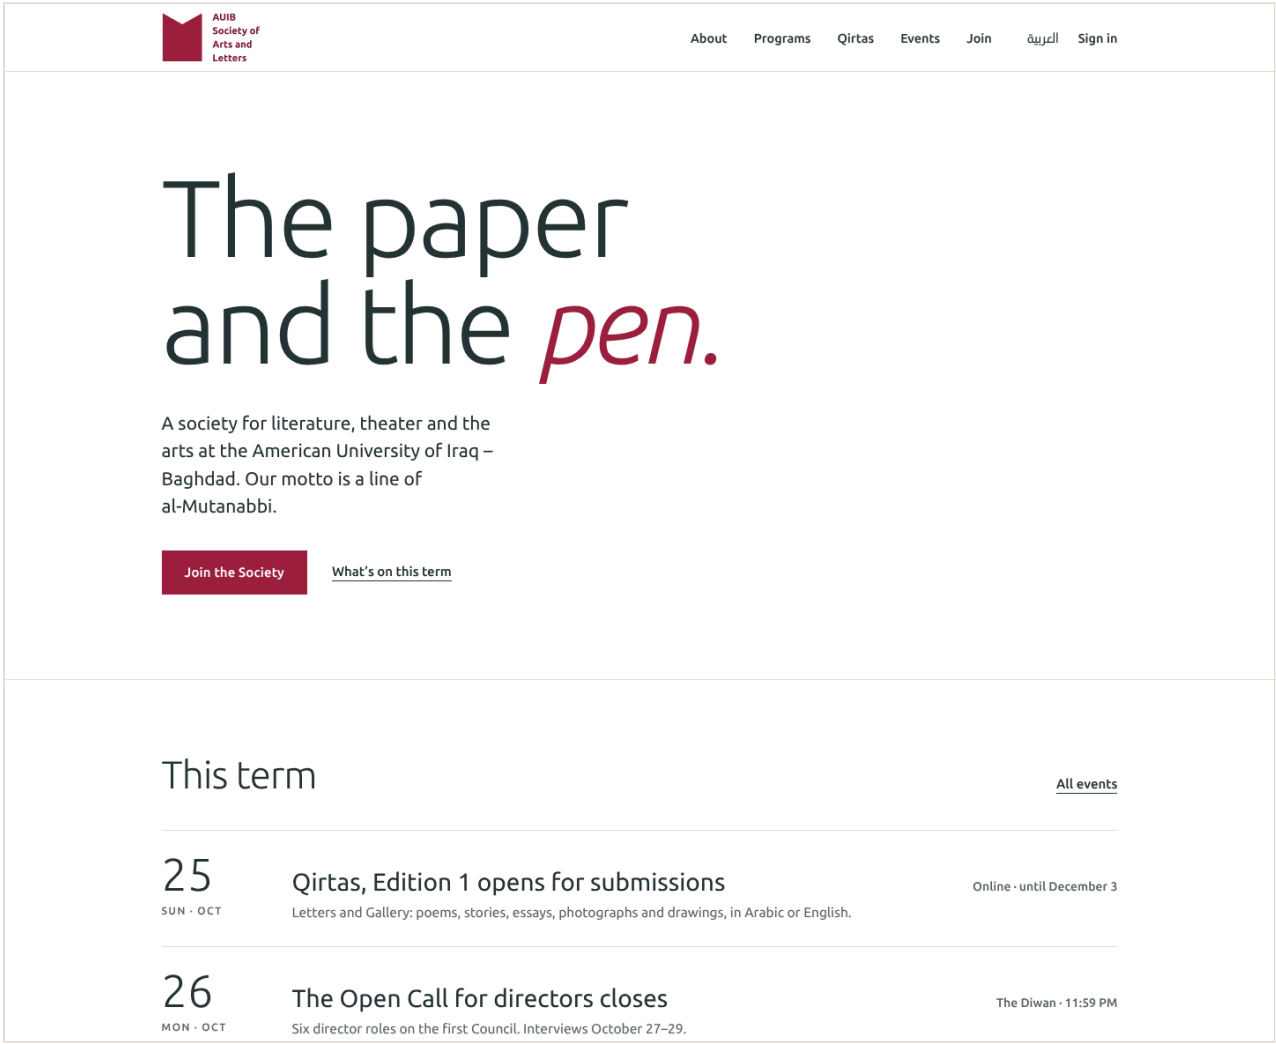

Join the Society

We use one cookie to keep you signed in. Cookie settings

The cookie notice: a slim bar along the bottom edge that never covers content.

Screens

auibsal.org and the Diwan share one frame. Few boxes, big words, a lot of air. The English site is English only and the Arabic site Arabic only.

Header: one line. The lockup in the page's language, five sections at most, the other language, the theme toggle and Sign in as text links. A hairline below.

Front door: the motto, one sentence, one button. Section titles stand alone, with at most a link at the end of the line.

Events: a dated list, large Light day numbers down the margin, like an almanac.

Qirtas, the Society's paper, on paper, with a masthead and no empty image spaces.

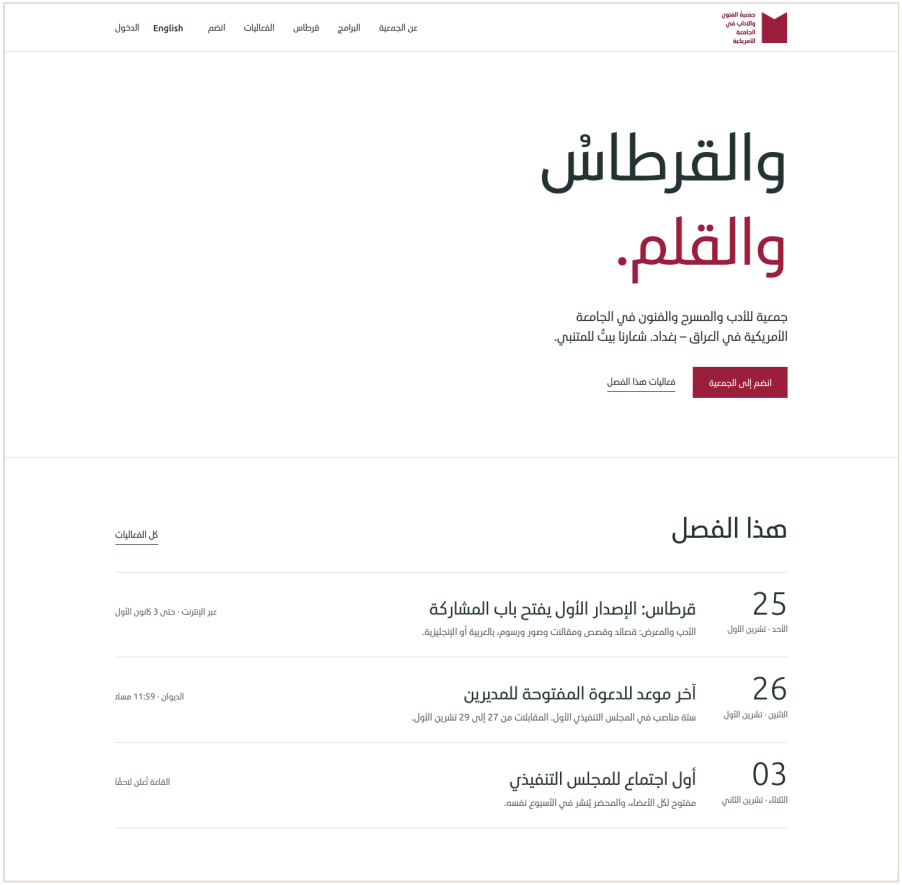

"Come in." One ink band with the invitation, then the ink footer: three short columns.

Arabic pages mirror the layout, with the Arabic lockup and Ubuntu Arabic Regular for display.

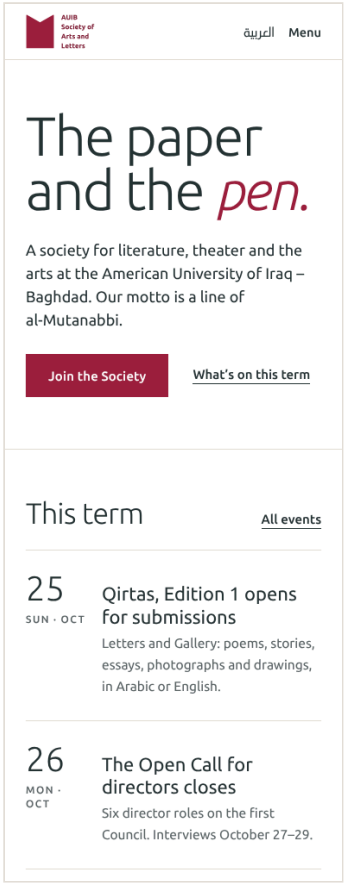

Phones: nothing scrolls sideways at 360 px. Errors say what happened and what to do; no exclamation marks.

In Arabic, on phones

The Arabic site is its own edition: the same layout mirrored, the Arabic lockup, Ubuntu Arabic Regular. Phones get the same page in one column.

auibsal.org/ar

390 px

Mirrored: `dir="rtl"` on the page; the lockup at the top right; links and dates on the start side.

Display in Ubuntu Arabic Regular at 1.3 leading; the accent word changes color only.

Latin strings (@auibsal, links, emails) are wrapped in `<bdi dir="ltr">` so they read the right way.

Phones: the lockup at 40 px, a Menu link in place of the sections, the motto at 56–64 px.

Lists keep their dates; the time and place move under the title.

Nothing scrolls sideways at 360 px. Tap targets are 44 px or larger.

Qirtas

The Society's paper. Its name, «قرطاس», is the paper of our motto: AUIB's paper of news, letters and art, online every week and in print each Edition.

The front page: the masthead, the dateline between ink rules, the desks, a lead story and a column of headlines.

The masthead

"Qirtas" in Ubuntu Medium (500), set tight, never Light, never in crimson. On Arabic pages, «قرطاس» in Ubuntu Arabic Bold.

Under it, the dateline between two ink rules: the date, the line "AUIB's paper of news, letters and art" and the Edition.

Then the desks as a row of text links. No logo inside the masthead: the site header already carries it.

Qirtas pages sit on paper (`surface-reading`), the one place the page is not white.

The desks

News	Campus news, reported and checked: the University, the Society, students' lives.
Letters	Poems, stories and essays, read blind, in Arabic or English.
Gallery	Photographs, drawings and comics; its picks hang on the Gallery wall.
Video	Short films and series, with a written page for each.
Voices	Columns and opinion, signed and fact-checked.

Also in Qirtas

The Sunday Paper: the weekly email to members.

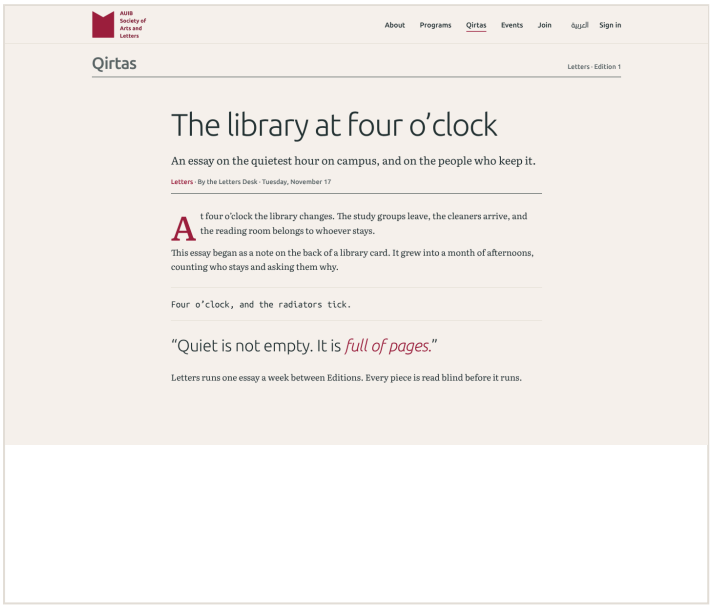

The Month in Qirtas: the monthly roundup.

Six Words in Ubuntu Mono, and the daily Games.

No empty image boxes: a story without a picture gets a typographic layout.

Reading Qirtas

Headlines in Ubuntu, reading in Literata. Every article page is built the same way, so the words do the work.

An article page

PART	SET IN
Headline	Ubuntu Light, `display`, in ink
Dek	Literata 22 / 1.5 (`read-dek`)
Byline	The desk in accent, then the author and date: "Letters · By … · Tuesday, November 17". Never above the headline.
Body	Literata 17.5 / 1.68 (`read-body`), 60–70 characters a line
Drop cap	Literata Medium in accent, first paragraph only
Pull quote	Ubuntu Light 34 px, one italic accent word
Six Words	`Ubuntu Mono, between hairlines`

An Edition cover

The call for an Edition

How to submit, as a carousel

Editions: one curated Edition a semester, in print and online, on paper with the masthead on the cover; the lockup small at the foot.

Launch Night: each Edition opens in a room, with readings; its posts use the crimson ground.

Read blind: every piece is read without its author's name. Arabic and English pieces run in their own editions of the page.

The family of programs

Four flagships, the Evenings and the Specials. Each program may have its own title treatment; all of them share the Society's colors and type.

Next Stop

The campus series filmed on the AUIB bus. Every episode's title card ends "Next stop: [guest]".

Second Chapter

The used-book drive and fair, with the partner named beside it: Natrok Athar.

Typewriter Tour

Ubuntu Mono for the six-word lines, typed on the Society's machine.

The Company

The Society's theater company: one production a semester, cast from Open Stage.

The Evenings

The Majlis, Book Circle, Open Pages and Open Stage, in a fixed four-week cycle on one weekday.

The Specials

Bad Poetry Night, Munazara and Mutanabbi Friday: big, loud and once a term each.

Every program must

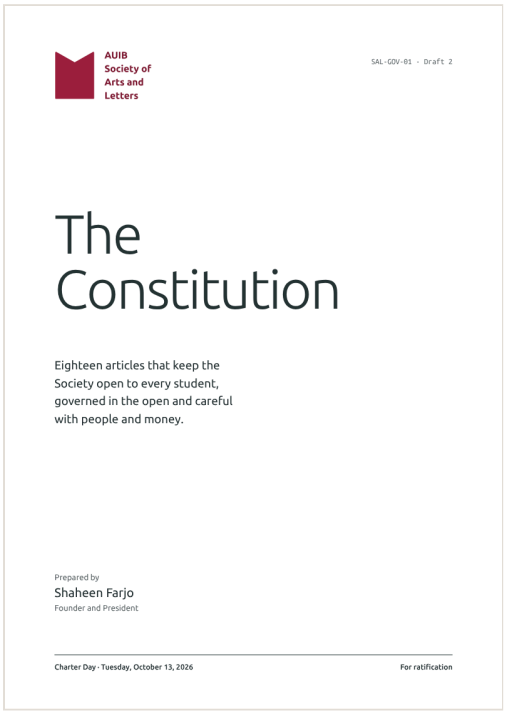

- Use the six colors and the Ubuntu family. Never add a color.
- Carry the Society's lockup, or the line "a Society of Arts and Letters programme" (in Arabic: «من برامج جمعية الفنون والآداب»), in the piece's language.
- Tag @auibsal on every post.

A program may

- Have its own name treatment, approved by the Director of Media.
- Use its own handle once it has a year of content.
- Use paper or Ubuntu Mono as its accent.

Documents

Every Society document is built from the same parts, so a new member can make one that looks like ours on the first try.

An English cover

One language: an English document is English only. The Arabic edition is its own document, mirrored, with the Arabic lockup. Codes stay in Latin letters.

Cover: the lockup at the top start; the code in Ubuntu Mono at the top end; title in Light, ink; one sentence; "Prepared by"; a hairline footer with the date and status. No ribbon, no band. Always light.

Contents: numbered rows with hairlines; no band.

Section pages: a one- or two-word Light title, one sentence, then content. Nothing above the title.

Legal text: two columns; articles numbered in Ubuntu Mono; clause numbers in the margin.

Forms: code and Light title above an ink hairline; the symbol top right; small tracked labels; ink write-on lines that survive photocopying; an office-use strip on paper.

Footers: every page but the cover; a hairline, code and title at left, "3 / 14" at right (spaced slash, no "Page").

Closing page: "Thank you." in Light, and nothing else.

CODE	SERIES	EXAMPLES
SAL-GOV	Governance	Constitution, Bylaws, Roles and Staffing
SAL-POL	Policies	Policy Manual
SAL-OPS	Operations	Playbook, Templates and Forms
SAL-STR · MEM · BRD · PRT · PRP	Strategy, members, brand, print, proposals	Strategic Plan, Member Handbook, this guide

Forms and footers

Forms are printed, filled by hand and photocopied, so they are plain, light and ink-ruled.

SAL-OPS-02 · F-14

Event proposal

EVENT TITLE

PROPOSED BY

DATE

ROOM

BUDGET (IQD)

FOR OFFICE USE

RECEIVED

APPROVED BY

REF.

The top of a form: code and title, the symbol, fields and the office-use strip

The code in Ubuntu Mono (`SAL-OPS-02 · F-14`) and a Light title above an ink hairline; the symbol at the top end, 44 px.

Labels are nouns in small tracked capitals (“Date”, “Proposed by”), never questions. Money fields carry their unit: “Budget (IQD)”.

Write-on lines in ink, so they survive photocopying. An office-use strip on paper at the foot.

Forms are always light and printed on white, in the form’s language: Arabic forms mirror the layout.

Every page but the cover ends with the footer: a hairline, the code and short title at the start, “3 / 14” at the end.

Spaced slash, no “Page”.

SAL-BRD-01 · Brand and Identity 3 / 14

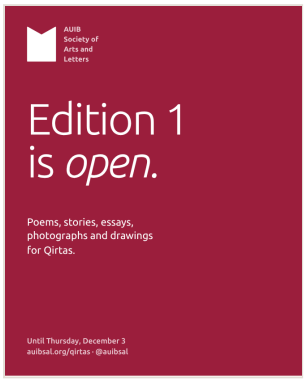

The document footer

The Arabic edition of a document is its own document: mirrored, with the Arabic lockup at the top right, the title in Ubuntu Arabic Regular and the code still in Latin letters.

Posts and print

One idea per post, in one language. The headline does the work; nothing sits above it.

Crimson · calls and moments

Photo · the picture above, words on a solid panel

Arabic, white · events

Arabic, ink · words worth keeping, recruiting

Posts (1080 × 1350)

English posts carry the English lockup; Arabic posts the Arabic lockup, mirrored. Post them separately.

The lockup at the top start; two to five words with a full stop in Light, one italic word at most; one sentence; the date or link and @auibsal at the bottom start.

Grounds by purpose: crimson for calls and moments, white for events, ink for words worth keeping and recruiting.

Photo posts: the picture above (1080 × 820), the words on a solid ink or white panel, the lockup at the bottom end. Never type over a photograph.

Instagram crops the grid to 3:4: keep words 80 px from the side edges.

Print

Posters A3/A4: lockup, Light headline, a QR code at the bottom end.

Term Card: A6, four to an A4 sheet. Membership cards: 85 × 55 mm.

Certificates: A4 landscape, one hairline frame and the lockup. Signage and banners may use the bilingual lockup.

Carousels and stories

A carousel reads as one piece, in one language and on one ground. A story is a post set for a tall screen.

Cover: a post, and the only slide with the logo.

Inside slides: a large Light number (“01”) in accent, a short title with a full stop, one to three lines.

The last slide: the wordmark alone, in the carousel’s language. No symbol, no text, no handle.

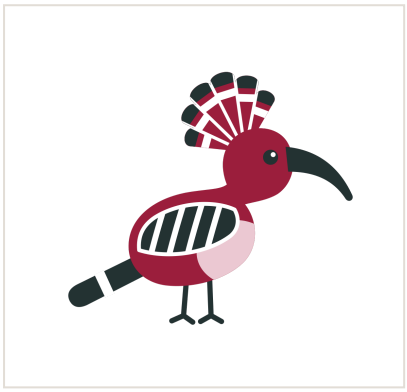

No slide counters and no “swipe” prompts: Instagram shows the dots. Six slides or fewer; ten at most.

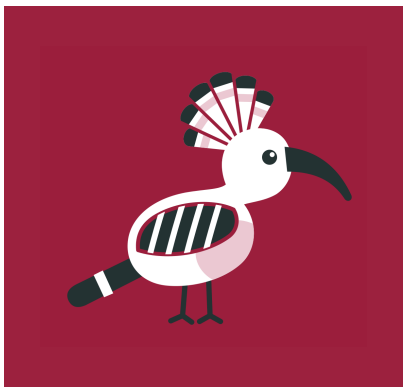

Stories, 1080 × 1920: every word at least 250 px from the top and 340 px from the bottom, clear of the app’s own bars; the space under the sentence is left for a link sticker.

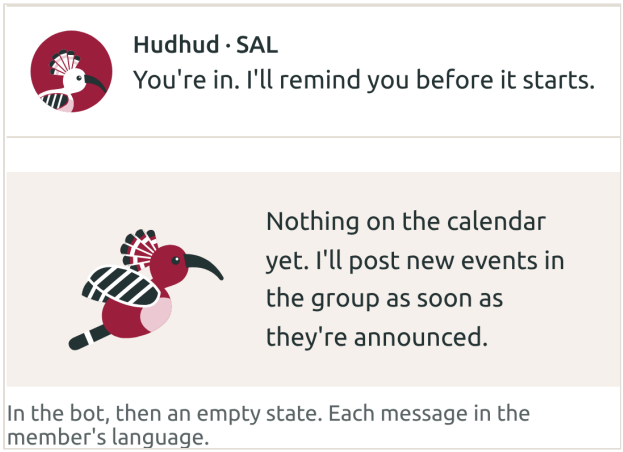

Hudhud

A hoopoe: native to Iraq, the messenger of the old stories, and the guide in Attar's The Conference of the Birds. He is the face of the Telegram bot and appears only where the Society talks to members one to one.

In the bot, then an empty state. Each message in the member's language.

The bot's avatar at 96, 48 and 28 px

Drawn flat in the brand's colors with no outlines: crimson body, rose breast, ink wings, tail and beak with white bars. One fan of six crest feathers runs straight into the head.

Hudhud and the logo never touch: no symbol or letter anywhere on him, and he never stands in for the logo.

Props and expressions belong to the stickers only (next page).

Files: standing and reversed for welcomes and notices; flying for "sent" and empty states that point somewhere.

Avatars: the white Bookmark on crimson for the Society's accounts; white Hudhud on crimson for the bot only.

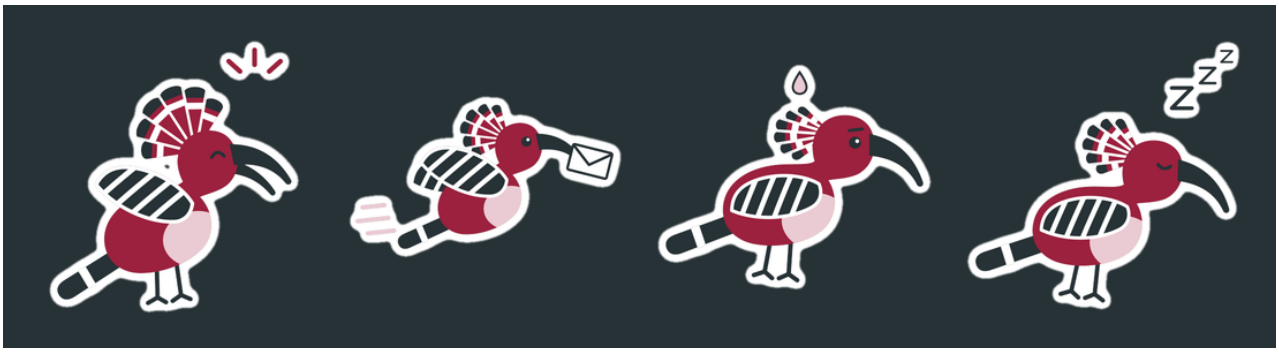

He speaks in the first person, warm and brief: "You're in. I'll remind you before it starts." No exclamation marks, no emoji.

48 px and up; his avatar works down to 28 px.

Hudhud's stickers

Twelve Telegram stickers, 512 × 512, each with a white die-cut edge so it sits on light and dark chats alike.

In the bot

A sticker follows the message, never replaces it: "You're in. I'll remind you before it starts.", then 02.

One sticker per reply at most: 02 after an RSVP, 06 after a submission, 07 with an error, 05 when there is nothing new, 12 with a deadline.

In the members' group, stickers are for members; the bot never posts one unprompted.

Drawing them

No words on stickers, so they work in both languages.

Hudhud has no hands: props sit in the beak or on the ground. The head is never turned; the whole bird leans.

Stickers are for chat only, never posters, posts or documents. The set is "Hudhud · SAL", short name `hudhud_sal`, each filed under one emoji.

Voice

We sound like a well-read friend: warm, precise and never grand.

WE ARE	WE ARE NOT	SO WE WRITE
Warm	Gushing	“We would love you to join us.” Not “An AMAZING opportunity!!!”
Concrete	Vague	“Tuesday, October 13, 4 PM, Room [x].” Not “soon, somewhere on campus.”
Confident	Grand	“A paper read blind and printed with care.” Not “Iraq’s premier literary institution.”
Bilingual	Translated as an afterthought	Arabic written for Arabic readers, then checked by a native speaker.
Playful	Mocking	“The worst poem at AUIB wins.” Jokes about ideas, never people.

House style

Short titles: “Charter Day”, “Every Dinar”, “The Ribbon”.

Dates as “Tuesday, October 13”; times as “6:00 PM”; money as “50,000 IQD”.

Numerals in tables; words in prose under ten.

American English everywhere: organization, program, color. Quoted adopted text and the endorsement line keep their own spelling.

No emoji; no exclamation marks in headlines.

Names and pictures

“AUIB Society of Arts and Letters” in full on first use; then “the Society” or “SAL”. Never “the club”, never “Art and Letter”.

Call Qirtas “the Society’s paper”. Programs are named as the Programs page lists them.

Arabic-named partners in their own language first: Natrok Athar (نترك اثر).

No icon set. The logo is our only mark, and Hudhud in one-to-one channels; use words, not icons or emoji. Mark wrong examples with a plain “×”.

Photography

Our own photos of our own people, taken with consent, always beat stock images.

Shoot

- Hands on typewriter keys, pages, books being handed over
- Readers mid-sentence; full rooms
- Close-ups only with consent
- Natural light; no heavy filters

Never shoot

- Anyone wearing a camera-shy sticker
- Identifiable children, ever
- People praying, in distress or in private moments
- Stock photos of books or typewriters in place of ours

Treat

- Color natural and slightly warm
- Duotone in crimson or ink for posters and covers
- Never set type over a photo: the words go on a solid panel
- No photo means a typographic layout: never an empty image box

Keep

- Every event archived within a week in the Diwan
- Consent log updated with every release (F-17)
- Two copies: the Diwan and one offline backup

Files and templates

Everything lives in the Society's design system, "AUIB Society of Arts and Letters", and in the platform's brand folder, with copies in the SAL Notion workspace.

FILE	WHAT IT IS
`sal-lockup-horizontal(-reversed).svg`	Symbol + English; everything in English
`sal-lockup-horizontal-ar(-reversed).svg`	Arabic + symbol; everything in Arabic
`sal-lockup-bilingual(-reversed).svg`	English | symbol | Arabic; signage, banners, merchandise
`sal-lockup-stacked(-reversed).svg`	Symbol over English; stickers, merchandise
`sal-symbol.svg · sal-symbol-white.svg`	The Bookmark alone
`sal-wordmark-en / -ar (-reversed).svg`	The wordmarks; alone on the last slide of a carousel
`sal-avatar.svg`	White Bookmark on crimson; profile pictures
`hudhud*.svg / .png · stickers`	Hudhud, his avatar and twelve stickers
`UbuntuArabic-Regular / -Bold.woff2`	Arabic typeface, shipped with the system
`tokens.json · bundle.css`	Colors, type, space and the components: cover, footer, form, post, carousel, story

Fonts. Ubuntu, Ubuntu Mono and Literata are free from Google Fonts. Ubuntu Arabic is not on Google Fonts: install it from the design system's fonts folder. Install them before editing any template. In Canva, upload the logo SVGs and Ubuntu Arabic to the Brand Kit with the six colors.

DOCUMENT	VERSION	OWNER	STATUS
SAL-BRD-01	1	Director of Media	Ratified

Next review each September. The current version always lives in the SAL Notion workspace; printed copies may be out of date.

Thank you.